ADOPTS HIGHER STANDARD.

Action by G. W. U. on Requirements for Pre-Medical Courses.

Requirements for admission to the pre-medical courses at George Washington University have been raised by action of the president's council from fourteen to fifteen units.

The council also has decided to accept certificates from schools contained in the list of "Accredited Secondary Schools in the United States," published by the United States bureau of education in 1915. Certificates of admission from schools not contained in this list will be referred to a committee consisting of deans of the three undergraduate colleges of the department of arts and sciences for determination of acceptability.

CANAL REPAIRS DELAYED.

Boats Cannot Use Georgetown Locks Before End of Week.

Though repair work has been pushed on the break in the Chesapeake and Ohio canal for the past ten days, the hole in the bank was so extensive that it will be some time tomorrow before the repairs will be completed. The letting in of water into the canal will then be started, and it will be the latter part of the week before the loaded canal boats will begin to arrive at the Georgetown locks. The break in the canal, the officials say, looks like it was caused by a slide in the bank, the towpath giving away for a distance of about 50 feet, and for 120 feet farther the towpath was damaged. Big Pool, at the lower end of which the break occurred, is one of the widest and deepest parts of the canal, the water in places being eighteen feet deep and about as wide as is the Potomac at Georgetown. All the boats that were this side of the break have arrived here and the Georgetown end of the canal is idle.

DANIEL B. MILLER DEAD.

Was Connected With General Land Office Survey.

Daniel B. Miller, sixty-five years old, associated in a technical capacity with the general land office in connection with land surveys in the far west, died Sunday night at the George Washington University Hospital. Funeral services are to be held at the family residence in Lanham, Md., tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Mr. Miller was a native of Indiana. As a child he crossed the plains to California in a covered wagon and lived in the early mining camps.

In recent years he was much interested in having the government mark the location of the old trail to Oregon by means of appropriate monuments, and did much work toward this end.

Mr. Miller's father, who had charge of the wagon train during its progress to the west coast from Indiana, kept a diary, and made rough maps as they went on. These documents were photographed, and are being used in furthering the effort to perpetuate the way over which gold seekers passed.

His wife and four sons, Watson B. Lee F., Daniel B., Jr., and Kirk C. Miller are living.
